Retirement Planning and Home Equity

As one of your clients' most trusted resources, you play an essential role in providing clear direction to shape and plan for the future. Understanding all the options at one's disposal in an ever-changing financial landscape lets you offer a complete perspective, ensuring your clients get the sound advice they need to succeed on their retirement journey.

The Reverse Mortgage: A Powerful Key to Unlocking a Brighter Retirement

Appreciating home values, combined with the need to plan for market fluctuations over lengthening lifespans, has led many financial professionals to take a fresh perspective on home equity and its uses for improving retirements.

Far from a "loan of last resort," recent developments such as lower minimum age requirements and proprietary loan amounts up to $4 million* have made the reverse mortgage an attractive option for millions, including the mass affluent demographic.

With FAR's robust suite of customizable products, you can help clients responsibly leverage their stored wealth as part of a strategic and comprehensive approach to funding their lifestyle later in life and accomplishing their retirement goals.

Why Reverse Mortgages?

With an aging demographic and record levels of accumulated housing wealth, the challenge of funding a decades-long retirement period has led to seismic shifts in the retirement planning landscape.

In reconsidering home equity as its own asset class, you can proactively and successfully solve several retirement challenges your clients may encounter, including:

- ✔ Funding Long-Term Care
- ✔ Delaying Social Security
- ✔ Funding Roth Conversions
- ✔ Creating a Sequence of Return Strategy
- ✔ Improving Cash Flow
- ✔ Planning and Preserving Estates

What Is a Reverse Mortgage?

A reverse mortgage is a loan exclusively available to homeowners 55+ that converts stored home equity into usable cash. For many in or nearing retirement, it can be a sensible option for improving cash flow and/or establishing a line of credit for use in retirement.

Borrowers must live in the home as their primary residence, must continue to pay property taxes and insurance, and maintain the home while also upholding all other loan terms. If the homeowner does not meet these loan obligations, then the loan will need to be repaid. Otherwise, the balance is payable at the time the borrower is no longer living in the home as their primary residence. However, because it is a non-recourse loan, this means that you, or your estate, can't owe more than the value of your home when the loan becomes due and the home is sold.

Popular Uses

- ✔ Eliminate monthly mortgage payments*
- ✔ Supplement retirement income with tax-free funds†
- ✔ Pay off high-interest debt‡
- ✔ Establish a flexible line of credit that grows over time

*The borrower must meet all loan obligations, including living in the property as the principal residence and paying property charges, including property taxes, fees, hazard insurance. The borrower must maintain the home. If the homeowner does not meet these loan obligations, then the loan will need to be repaid.

For certain HomeSafe® products only, excluding Massachusetts, New York, and Washington, where the minimum age is 60, and North Carolina, Texas, and Utah, where the minimum age is 62.

†Not tax advice. Consult a tax professional

‡Potential savings and benefits may not apply to all borrowers and may end up costing more over the life of the loan based on the borrower's tax and financial situation. A reverse mortgage loan does not require regular monthly installment repayment obligations of principal and interest, however, accrued interest will be added to the loan account, negative amortization will occur, and a borrower's equity in their home may decrease over time.

Comparing Reverse Mortgages to Traditional Loan Products

For clients in or nearing retirement, reverse mortgages may offer key strategic advantages over most traditional loan products to help achieve financial goals.

	Cash-Out Refi	HELOC
Client Goal	Lower monthly mortgage payment	Pay off high-interest debt
Traditional Challenge	Strict employment and/or income qualifications	Line of credit can be revoked or frozen in volatile market conditions
Reverse Solution	Flexible employment and income qualifications can eliminate monthly mortgage payments*	Line of credit is protected from market conditions and can grow over time

Borrowers must occupy the home as their primary residence to meet the requirements of the reverse mortgage.

Is a Reverse Mortgage Right for Your Client?

Unlocking home equity can be a key component to improving retirement. If you answer yes to any of the following questions about your client's financial situation, a reverse mortgage may be a sensible addition to their overall retirement strategy.

Risk Management

- ▶ Does your client need more protection against long-term care events and/or unexpected expenses?
- ▶ Does your client have an existing HELOC, or have you recommended a line of credit?

Home Purchasing

- ▶ Is your client considering purchasing a 2nd home and/or investment property?
- ▶ Does your client need to efficiently own 2 homes without draining invested assets (ex. divorce)?

Income & Investing

- ▶ Does your client still pay a mortgage?
- ▶ Does your client want/need to retire before their social security maximum benefit age?
- ▶ Is your client younger than 72, want/need additional income, and holding tax-deferred investments?
- ▶ Is your client short on paying the tax on a Roth conversion?

Estate & Legacy Planning

- ▶ Is your client interested in legacy planning while still living (ex. charitable donations, trusts, funding grandchildren's education)?

For Reverse Loans: When the loan is due and payable, some or all of the equity in the property that is the subject of the reverse mortgage no longer belongs to borrowers, who may need to sell the home or otherwise repay the loan with interest from other proceeds. The lender may charge an origination fee, mortgage insurance premium, closing costs and servicing fees (added to the balance of the loan). The balance of the loan grows over time and the lender charges interest on the balance. Borrowers are responsible for paying property taxes, homeowner's insurance, maintenance, and related taxes (which may be substantial). We do not establish an escrow account for disbursements of these payments. A set-aside account can be set up to pay taxes and insurance and may be required in some cases. Borrowers must occupy home as their primary residence and pay for ongoing maintenance; otherwise the loan becomes due and payable. The loan also becomes due and payable (and the property may be subject to a tax lien, other encumbrance, or foreclosure) when the last borrower, or eligible non-borrowing surviving spouse, dies, sells the home, permanently moves out, defaults on taxes, insurance payments, or maintenance, or does not otherwise comply with the loan terms. Interest is not tax-deductible until the loan is partially or fully repaid.
